

"A Map Of Love"

Back in the summer, while out having a walk, at the top of Lewesdon Hill I got talking with a young couple having a picnic.

He came from Broadwindsor, and she from Salwayash. They spent much of their time together going up the local hills, learning where they could see from each place, pointing them out to each other, filling in the gaps of their knowledge. Literally looking at things from a different viewpoint. Drawing, in their minds, a map of love.